

Outsourcing Provides Value, Cost Savings to Employers

December 11, 2008

Employers are faced with many challenges in today's business environment. They continue to look for ways to increase revenue, create efficiencies and decrease costs. It is not surprising that many are choosing outsourcing as a solution.

Outsourcing benefits administration can provide employers with several advantages. Many employers underestimate the time spent on creating the proper forms and notices, maintaining the proper documentation, and staying on top of the newest regulations. With outsourcing, employers gain additional resources and reduce the amount of time spent on administrative tasks. This allows employers to focus on core business functions such as increasing sales, improving operations and employee development.

When considering a benefits administrator, employers must choose wisely. Look for an administrator that has experience, competence, exceptional customer service, compliance and protection. HCGServices provides employers with all of these:

Experience – HCGServices has over 15 years in the industry.

Competence – Questions are answered by licensed professionals who have received extensive training in their field of expertise.

Exceptional Customer Service – HCGServices has over a 90 percent one-call resolution and extended hours with service representatives answering the phones.

Compliance – An on-staff Labor and Employment attorney.

HCGServices continually strives to provide the best outsourcing experience for their clients by saving them time and money. To find out how HCGServices can help employers with their benefits, please contact us at 800-367-2482.
